

REPORT MOVE AFOOT IN COUNTY TO HAVE HIGHWAYS PATROLLED

Commissioners in Favor of Putting Cruiser to Work for Sheriff

PLAN IS EXPLAINED
Would Furnish Much
More County Protection

A plan that has proven successful in adjoining counties including Madison, Scioto and Franklin, whereby a deputy sheriff is kept on the county's highways 24 hours each day, may be adopted in Pickaway-co provided county commissioners act favorably to a project which has been brought to their attention by several persons.

With fall and winter coming, and with its usual hard times, it is predicted that "petit stealing" in the county during the coming winter will be worse than it has for a long time. Scioto-co a year ago inaugurated the idea of a cruiser and reports that during the winter the number of theft reports were 45 per cent less than they were the winter previous. Madison-co had shown how successful a cruiser can be operated.

VOTING OFFICIAL
Although there has been nothing official done on the matter, it is understood that Miller Fissell, county traffic deputy, would be assigned to highway duty and would patrol county roads at night. Another member of the sheriff's force would be put on the county highways in the day time.

This program would mean that an extra would be needed in the sheriff's office. For a long time it has been shown that a permanent desk deputy has been needed on the county force and this plan would provide such a move.

Many persons hearing of the plan to increase the sheriff's force will naturally complain that the burden will be shifted on county taxpayers. But such is not the case. As it is now planned, if Fissell should be moved over to night patrol duty he would be taken off the actual sheriff's force and would be paid from the county's division of the gasoline tax fund. Thus his salary would not be paid from the general fund.

If a desk man is employed, and that is what is contemplated, he would be paid from the general fund but his salary would naturally be lower than Fissell's and would not take so much from the general fund, thus making a saving for the county in the transaction. The gasoline tax distribution can be used for highways alone or for deputies patrolling the highways.

MORE PROTECTION
Thus the county would be given added protection, crops and stock would be better protected, and the sheriff's office would have a much more efficient force, both from the angles of law enforcement and crime prevention.

It is a possibility that should the commissioners act favorably on this proposal the automobile used as a cruiser would be equipped with radio so that it would be in touch with Columbus' police broadcasting station at all times.

Pickaway-co is in the center of a group of larger cities, including Columbus, Lancaster, Chillicothe and others. When crimes are committed in any other these cities reports are telephoned to the Columbus station and the news is "put on the air." Cruisers in different localities catch the report and can immediately rush to any advantageous point in an effort to apprehend the perpetrator.

It is understood that Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff, Prosecuting Attorney E. L. Crist and the board of county commissioners are in favor of the move, and all that is necessary is legislation.

BONES LEAD TO MURDER MYSTERY

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 24—In the charred bones of child about two years old, found in the ashes of a brush fire on a farm near the East Liverpool airport, authorities today suspected they had discovered a murder plot.

Reports that a strange man carrying a bundle, was seen near the farm the night the fire broke out, were being investigated by Sheriff William J. Barlow.

A woman screamed and an automobile sped away from the farm the night the body is believed to have been placed on the fire, one neighbor told the sheriff.

Club For Male Pacifiers Found

CHICAGO, July 24—Investigation of a club of girls organized to supply young lady companions for lonely male visitors was under way here today by the state's attorney office.

Assistant state's attorney James L. Henry was assigned to the case when a young married woman complained she had been asked to join the club.

Gertrude R. Houston, secretary, explained that the purpose was to enroll young women who could become evening companions for out-of-town visitors.

"The gentlemen who want entertainers will be interviewed about their characters," she said. "They will pay the club a service fee for parties and will receive no compensation but a good time."

FATHER KILLS FAMILY, SELF

Believe $7 In Purse is Cause of Family Massacre; Four Are Dead.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 24—A blood-stained and opened purse containing $7 that was found on the floor in a room of a five-room house in the Pittingher home here, today led authorities to set up a theory that the family massacre was the result of a domestic quarrel over money.

Following an investigation, Coroner F. X. Schukler returned a verdict today of murder and suicide. He said it was evident that Herbert Pittingher, 41-year old husband and father, had slain his wife and children and then committed suicide.

The victims of the family tragedy were: Pittingher's wife, Flora, 38; Ardith Pittingher, their 14-year old daughter, and James Pittingher, 10, a son.

The bodies were discovered when neighbors, with whom the Pittinghers were to have gone on an outing yesterday, were unable to arouse anyone at the home. Police were called and entrance was forced into the house.

4,400 ASKED OUSTER

Charges of Irregularity
Denied in Court Ruling

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 24—Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas of Mahoning-co today was found not guilty of blackmailing Harry J. Engle, ousted Youngstown traction commissioner, in a decision handed down by Judge H. W. Jewell of Delaware, who presided at the trial by assignment of the state supreme court.

A joint decision refusing to remove Thomas from the office of Mahoning-co prosecutor was rendered at the same time by the special tribunal of judges in charge of the probe of the Mahoning-co political scandal.

The ouster decision was handed down by Judges Jewell, Alfred Mack of Cincinnati, and A. J. Pearson of Cleveland. They were assigned here to investigate reported illegal connections of public officials with utility companies.

CHARGED BLACKMAIL
The blackmail trial of the prosecutor was finished a week ago today after more than four weeks had been spent in taking testimony.

Only three days were required this week for arguments in the ouster hearing. No testimony was presented.

Thomas, on the stand in his own defense, made a blanket denial of every charge against him.

The blackmail count resulted from a letter Thomas allegedly sent to city council last February demanding that council oust Engle from his office of traction commissioner because Engle "was using the prosecutor's office to further a gigantic blackmail scheme."

Engle, the ousted traction commissioner, testified he had hired the prosecutor to act as his agent in collecting $150,000 from the Penn. Ohio Power & Light Company for (Continued On Page Five.)

GUTHERY ASKS FARM BOARD TO WITHHOLD HUGE CROP SURPLUS

Wheat Market is 'Ghost That Haunts American Agriculture'
State Director Says in Letter to Federal Board; Public
Would Consent to Dumping Overflow Into Lake.

COLUMBUS, O., July 24—Picturing the troublesome wheat problem as "the ghost that haunts American agriculture," State Director of Agriculture I. S. Guthery today again called upon President Hoover to order the Federal Farm Board's 2,000,000 bushel surplus withheld from the market.

Accompanying his request, the second made since Ohio wheat prices hit rock-bottom, was a statement estimating that hundreds of Ohio farmers this year will lose $30 an acre on all the wheat they harvested.

Excerpts culled from an avalanche of letters received since his first statement, recalling that in all parts of the nation "sentiment seems to be against the farm board," and in general accord with his suggestion, were made public simultaneously.

"It is the duty of the president of the United States to order his Farm board to withhold from the market this 2,000,000 bushel surplus," today's statement said. His original statement, cloaked in sterner language, made the same demand, and added that "No body would cry or protest if the Farm Board would hire ships and dump this entire surplus into the ocean."

Guthery today reiterated that farm board action of the type he asked would almost save the wheat situation.

"Any plan to withhold this wheat from the market will raise the price of 1931 wheat close to 80 cents a bushel," he declares.

The dismal outlook for Ohio wheat as forecast by Guthery predicted a $3 per acre loss both for the farm tenant and the landlord. Explaining how many farmers

MORE MORTGAGES
Price Drop in Cash Paid
For Land $23.63

The mounting period of economic depression from July 1, 1930 to June 30, 1931 greatly reduced the average price paid per acre for agriculture land conveyed in Pickaway-co. The difference between the price paid in these two years was $23.63 per acre, according to the fiscal report prepared by County Recorder Mary G. Morris and forwarded to Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown. The fact that Pickaway-co land values decreased considerably is only significant of the depression. In 1931 the average price paid for agricultural lands in this county was $38.34, while in the year previous the price was $61.97.

The report also disclosed a sharp increase in the number of real estate mortgages recorded and a decided decline in the cancellation of real estate mortgages during the past fiscal year as compared with the previous year.

Fourteen more real estate mortgages were filed in the past fiscal year than the previous year, for considerations which exceeded the total in 1930 by $40,000.

FEWER CANCELLED
Nine fewer mortgages were cancelled in the past year than the previous year, involving considerations which fell slightly more than $1,000 below those in 1930.

In 1931 there were 63 deeds (other than $1 considerations) on agricultural lands, for a total of 6708.53 acres, the considerations paid amounting to $257,179.00, making the average price per acre $38.34.

The preceding fiscal year showed that there were just two less, 61 deeds recorded for 5,574 acres, the consideration being $245,400.58 and making the average price paid per acre at $61.97.

In the fiscal year report just compiled it is shown that 35 deeds for city, town and village lots (other than $1 considerations) were recorded, the consideration amounting to $340,131.00; making a total for deeds, other than $1 considerations, at 117. The total number of deeds for only $1 considerations was 115 making the grand total of 402 deeds recorded.

The report for the previous fiscal year, 1930 showed 31 deeds for city, town and village lots (other than $1 considerations) and the total consideration being $40,956, a total of 104 deeds other than $1 considerations. Sixty-one agricultural deeds are also included here. The total deeds for $1 considerations reported were 166 making 441 deeds recorded.

LEASES DISCLOSED.
In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, the following lease business was conducted by Mrs. Morris: Number of agriculture land leases recorded, 3; number of acres covered by these leases, 450.7; consideration paid, $18,310.49; number recorded for city, town and village lots, 88; for consideration of $11,224.00.

In the previous fiscal year there were also three leases for agricultural lands covering 285 acres for a consideration of $1,166.66; leases for city, town and village lots, 6; for a total consideration of $2,254.44; 13 leases for mineral, oil and other lands for consideration of $13, making a grand total of 27 leases covering 1,142 acres with a total consideration of $5,452.10.

In the last fiscal year, 174 mortgages were recorded covering 19,117 acres of land for a consideration of $585,027.51. For the same period 160 mortgages on city lots (other than $1 considerations) were recorded.

MANY NEW LAWS IN EFFECT IN OHIO DURING NEXT MONTH

COLUMBUS, O., July 24.—Sun-day picture shows, fireworks, jury service, fishing, weed cutting and road-building are among the subjects dealt with by new laws which become effective in Ohio during August.

Other measures, enacted at the recent legislative session, which also become operative during the coming month deal with a variety of subjects including municipal and probate court procedure, election of common pleas and municipal court judges, sale of inflammable, or explosive, liquids, and the licensing of architects.

Authority for the holding of motion pictures shows on Sunday afternoons and nights is given in a law which will become effective August 3. The new statute decrees that Sunday theatricals must not interfere with Sunday morning religious services.

Sale of fireworks will be regulated throughout the state under provisions of another law which becomes operative August 3. Heretofore, the sale of fireworks, used in the observance of Fourth of July, has been regulated locally, through ordinance passed by city councils.

Although municipalities banned the use of fireworks within the city limits, the noisemakers were sold just outside the city limits.

Under Ohio's new jury code, effective August 3, members of volunteer fire departments and "contributing" members of the Ohio National Guard, no longer will be exempt from jury service in Ohio courts. The new law makes numerous changes relative to the appointment of the jury commission, the compiling of jury lists and the summoning of jurors. The court may excuse a person from jury service because of disability or for other causes deemed justifiable.

Although the new probate court code becomes a law August 4, it will not become operative until January 1, next year. It will simplify the probate court procedure and provides for innumerable changes from the present code.

Under the new code, procedure in the probate court will be somewhat similar to that observed in other courts of records where the various parties are represented by counsel.

Establishment of municipal courts in Fostoria, Warren, Niles and Gallipolis is provided for in laws which become effective August 4.

A statute authorizing establishment of a municipal court at Bedford is effective August 1. Another act, effective August 3, makes some changes in the Akron and Barberton municipal court acts.

A requirement that candidates for judge of the common pleas court in counties where more than one judge is to be elected shall designate what incumbent they desire to replace is embodied in a law which becomes operative August 3. This law, also, will apply to municipal court elections where the judges are chosen in the same manner as judges of common pleas courts which have more than one judge.

Laws which become effective August 1, authorize the use of gill nets anywhere in the Ohio water of Lake Erie, require non-resident pole fishermen to obtain fishing licenses; authorize the state highway director to co-operate in the building of roads to state parks, and provide for the transfer of the cost of cutting weeds along state and county roads, from the townships to the counties.

Abandonment by the state of the Miami & Erie canal between Toledo and Middletown for canal purposes is provided for in a law effective August 6. The canal is to be used as a super-highway between Toledo and Cincinnati.

Other measures which become operative August 6 provide for the licensing of architects by a state examining board; for the creation of the position of the bureau of bridges in the state highway department, and for the transfer of the state serum plant, now at Reynoldsburg, to the state agricultural experiment station at Wooster.

Use of automatic vending machines in the sale of gasoline, or other inflammable, or explosive, liquids, will be prohibited by a law effective August 10.

For variety, why not follow the culinary customs of people living in tropical countries and serve the Indian curry to your family? It is one of the most popular dishes of the Far East. It is hot and spicy, easy to prepare, and inexpensive, according to Fanny W. Yeatman, food preparation specialist of the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In the bureau's experimental laboratory, Mrs. Yeatman has tested several curries that are adaptable to American cookery, and recipes are available to the public on request.
Most persons associate curry with East India, but in reality it belongs to all Oriental tropical countries. Although its seasoning may vary somewhat with the country, curry is primarily a hot dish and as such is a stimulant for flagging appetites. Lack of appetite is a frequent accompaniment of hot weather even in our comparatively brief summer period, a situation which is intensified many times over in the torrid zone. The tropical school of cooking, which has developed through centuries of experience with high temperatures naturally aims to offset the effects of the weather. Consequently we might do well to take a hint from them and serve some of their special dishes in July or August.
Curries, which can be made of vegetables alone or of meat and vegetables, are good ways of using left-over meat as well as inexpensive fresh cuts of meat, according to Mrs. Yeatman. This should be welcome news to persons who are budgeting their food costs. The heel or the round of beef or the breast or neck of lamb will make as good a curry as one of the more expensive cuts, she declares. Fresh or cooked pork makes delicious curries, especially if combined with tart apples or green tomatoes.

Egg, chicken and fowl can also be used for making appetizing curries, but unless these are home grown products they, with the exception of eggs, are out of the low cost group. Inexpensive fish, fresh or canned, can also be used for curry.
Curry is an old dish even in the Orient. To curry is an ancient method of preparing meat and vegetables. In India it has been in existence since Vedic times, which means that it was cooked there 1500 years before Christ.
The curry powder itself, from which the dish takes its name, can be bought ready prepared in this country for about 40 cents a bottle. This should last an average family many months. In India, curry is mixed daily from the various spices that give it its very distinctive flavor. Each Indian cook house has, as part of its equipment, a smooth flat stone roller, on which the spices are crushed and ground as needed. Some of the ingredients for curry powder are old familiar standbys to American kitchen, such as onion, garlic, and black pepper-corns. But green ginger, turmeric, caraway seeds, dried hot chillis or peppers and coriander seeds and leaves are less frequent on our pantry shelves.
In addition to the onion that is used as a spice, one or two more are added to the curry during the cooking process. Mrs. Yeatman points out. This onion is cooked until perfectly soft so that its pulp makes the gravy thick. And being very thoroughly cooked, the onion is usually palatable even to those persons who ordinarily dislike its flavor.

PROBE BREAKING OF DOORS OF COLLEGE

DEFIANCE, O., July 24—The "why" and "what" that causes students to break doors, accidentally or otherwise, to pilfer a light bulb, or to do a thousand and one other opposed to the conventions of society, will be sought from a scientific angle at Defiance college during the next school year starting in September.
President W. Vernon Lytle has appointed a committee consisting of professors of psychology, sociology, and biology, with the assistance of a physician when needed, to conduct the experiments.
Under the plan as outlined by President Lytle, a student who forgets the proprieties of speech and conduct or fails to measure up to the accepted standards of student attainment will find himself facing a laboratory analysis by this committee to discover the hidden cause of it all.
What the study really means to do is to make a direct modern application of up-to-date scientific principles of psycho-analysis to problems of campus conduct, Dr. Lytle said.
With this innovation will come a radical change in the handling of students at the institution. No longer will a set of campus rules be dictated and enforced by deans. The standard of dormitory, classroom and campus conduct will be based on what society would ordinarily expect of a young person living at home or visiting at the home of a friend. Those students who fail to measure up to the standards of this "average typical household" will be taken before the committee which will attempt to find the cause and a remedy.
Punishment, in cases where punishment becomes necessary, will be revamped into some procedure designed to bring the students in line with their own possibilities. In actual practice, Dr. Lytle expects the committee will have little work to do. The existence of the committee will be enough to deter most students, he believes.
Dr. Lytle has just assumed his duties as president of Defiance College, having been called from the Institute of Human Relations, a Rockefeller endowed institution at Yale University.

Silence and Speech

COULD you quit talking for two weeks? Of course you could if it were absolutely imperative, but you wouldn't want to do it. Yet, a strict silence regimen is a part of the method of correcting defective speech adopted by one clinic devoted to that purpose. Patients are barred from uttering a single sound for a fortnight, no matter how urgent the need for conversation, in order to give the vocal machinery a complete rest.

In a recent test 12 high school girls and 30 boys were subjected to the treatment. The girls thought it would be impossible for one of the female sex to cease from conversation for two weeks, but they would try. Two girls failed under the strain. One felt that she just had to ask "Is my nose shiny?" and the other that she must borrow a powder puff and she asked for it. One boy ran away but the others stuck to silence for two weeks, mainly by keeping radio receivers glued to their ears.

One might secure an intimation of what the experience would be by ceasing from talking for an hour when in the company of others. Were one forbidden to speak, possibly there would be nothing else one would want to do so much. It is a voluntary act but most of us carry it on almost involuntarily. We are so accustomed to talking that it is automatic, though were it less so much of the conversation might prove of greater value. In the cases of those of us not suffering from defective speech, periods of silence might prove beneficial. Thoughts might catch up with conversation.

Why We Have Names

A name is like a handle. It shows you where to take hold. It is a great convenience. Every object and living creature has a name handle. Otherwise we are not able to talk intelligently about them.

Some names are arbitrary. They have come into being largely through accident. In most instances there is a reason for calling a thing by the particular name it bears. The Indians have peculiar names, such as Big Chief Eagle Eye, Braveheart, Lone Wolf, Sly Fox, Fleet Foot, Black Hawk, Strong Arm, Big Bull, etc. The idea is to give the name of some highly desired trait and expect the child to shape his character to fit the name.

Bible characters are named in a similar manner and for like reasons. Abraham means "Father of a Multitude"; Joshua means "Deliverer," and so on down the list. In some of these cases it would seem that the name was given after the reference to people whose names were changed. Jacob's name, "Cheater," for example, was changed to Israel, "God Striveth." Both stand for definite experiences in his life.

In modern times we do not attach much importance to the meaning of names. We are influenced by euphony and suggestion. Sometimes out of deference to some rich or beloved relative or some admired celebrity we name our children after them. This practice harks back to the ancient notion of hoping that the child will emulate some desired trait.

AFTER A LOT OF BRAGGING THE 'VERANDA FISHERMAN' IS TALKED INTO GIVING A PRACTICAL DEMONSTRATION.

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin

Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful orphan, seeks a position in the home of wealthy Mrs. Margaret Lorrimer, when the latter's son, Travers, a shell-shocked war veteran, enters. At sight of Mary Lou he becomes wildly excited, takes her in his arms and calls her "Delight" and "wite." Later, Mrs. Lorrimer explains that Travers has mistaken Mary Lou for Delight Harford, whom he claims he married in England, but of whom no record can be found. Mrs. Lorrimer persuades Mary Lou to assume the role of Delight to help Travers regain his health. Travers is told that, as Delight was so young at the time of her marriage and had since thought him dead, they must start all over again. In her first encounter with Travers, Mary Lou plays her part perfectly.

CHAPTER XIX.
REMEMBER a lot," he said solemnly, and then, because he saw her wince a little, added, hastily, "If you'd really like to learn to ride, I'll teach you."

She looked at him with her eyes like dark stars. This was the sort of thing she had made up her mind to work for in order to give him some healthy interest, to take him out of himself.

"Would you really? Are you—strong enough?" he said. Inspired question! He began to see himself as he must seem to a healthy, normal girl—not "strong" enough, a semi-invalid! Not a pretty picture. He shrugged the broad, stooped shoulders that, from very pride, he was already holding straighter.

"I'm all right," he answered. "Don't worry about me." They were approaching the house now, and Margaret Lorrimer, a loose tweed coat over her frock, was coming down the steps to meet them. She had been very anxious over the result of this first encounter, this initial step in the carefully laid plans. She greeted them easily enough, but her eyes sought Mary Lou's with a clear enough inquiry into their brown depths. Mary Lou nodded, imperceptibly, and smiled, and Mrs. Lorrimer drew a long breath of relief.

New Life

Lorrimer was questioning his mother with mere animation than he had seen in him for years. "About the horses—Delight wants to ride. I've said I'll teach her if I haven't forgotten myself," he added, half ruefully. "Have we any mount suitable for something pretty tame to begin with?" he went on, and at Mary Lou's pregnant explanation, he turned himself by laughing. "Pretty rusty, that laugh, but it's true."

"Lorrimer," his mother said, "couldn't you be a little more tactful? You're not a child, and you're not a horse."

"I don't see the little woman," Mary Lou asked. "Why, she doesn't sound awfully different."

"She is though. And she's been 'given to me' by the Lorrimer family. I don't know what she's for, but she's a horse."

"I don't see the little woman," Mary Lou asked. "Why, she doesn't sound awfully different."

"She is though. And she's been 'given to me' by the Lorrimer family. I don't know what she's for, but she's a horse."

"I am." He stifled a yawn and then smiled. "Not very chivalrous, is it?"

"How well do you sleep, anyway?" she demanded, briskly. "You've changed," he answered irrelevantly. "You never used to worry about people."

"I'm older," she replied serenely. "Besides, I didn't say I was worried. You go upstairs and take a nap."

"Governess!" he accused her, amazingly light-hearted. "Not at all. I want to get rid of you. Your mother's sending the car to the station—see, there it goes! That means frocks and frills. I'll see you at tea time," said Mary Lou, and steered him into the house, protesting every step of the way.

But she managed, and presently Lorrimer cast himself down on the couch in his sitting room, and tried to keep his eyes open. But he couldn't. He'd had more fresh air than usual and more exercise, and he was, moreover, tired out with the weight of his conflicting emotions, with the succeeding shocks and astonishments of the gone to a telephone and given certain orders.

The three of them lunched together that day, and, while there was sometimes silence, heavy with unspoken questions, Mrs. Lorrimer and Mary Lou managed to keep the conversational ball rolling most of the time.

"Haven't you a perfectly terrible appetite, Lorry?" said Mary Lou to Lorrimer. Mrs. Lorrimer looked from one to the other and observed with astonishment Mary Lou's easy use of the little nickname, unfamiliar to Lorrimer's mother, and his instant, markedly glad, acceptance of it. "I have," she went on. "I'm perfectly ashamed of it, but I can't help it."

And she proceeded to prove her words, leaving Lorrimer vaguely annoyed at his own fastidious "nicking" at his luncheon. But now that he came to think of it, he was hungrier than usual, and so demanded a second helping of salad from Peter, to Peter's perfectly obvious delight.

After luncheon Mary Lou insisted upon "walking off" the results of her appetite, and Lorrimer went with her. King, who had by now adopted her for his own, at their heels. When they came in, a four-armed Mary Lou looked at her companion gravely.

"You look sleepy," she accused him.

"I'm not sleepy," he protested. "I'm just a little tired."

Pickaway-co Health Topics
During these hot summer days when many people are out in the fields working hard to make an honest living, complying with the teachings of the Bible, "In the sweat of thy face shall thou eat." However, there is the danger of being overheated and collapse.

This overheating is scientifically called a stroke and is very dangerous to the welfare and to the life of the individual. Many people go to the parks on Sundays and holidays and take along with them plenty of delicious foods and refreshing drinks. They remain there on the camping grounds all day long under the sizzling sun enjoying their hearty meals and cold drinks not realizing that they are subjecting themselves to serious conditions of becoming sick from overheating and sunburns.

Other folks especially the younger ones enjoy themselves paddling all day long in the creek until their skin is so well marked with beautiful pictures of the actinic sun rays, that they can hardly wear their clothes.

Nearly each time we pick up a newspaper we read the sad news that Mr. So-and-So died of sunstroke, or apoplexy, or so-and-so collapsed and escaped luckily. Another party took sick drinking too much ice water. Many cases are even not reported to the press, but we hear of them anyhow.

Two Types of Sun Strokes

There are two distinct types of sun strokes, differing from one another in their effects and treatments.

1. Heat or sunstroke produces redness of the skin, of the face, hands and body, accompanied by a high temperature and the treatment for that condition is to reduce the temperature by cold packs to the head and to the body.

2. Heat prostration or heat exhaustion produces paleness of the face, coldness of the skin with a low temperature, and the treatment consists of placing patient in hot bath or compresses to the feet to mustard poultice to the feet to equalize the circulation, and Jamaica Ginger drinks internally. In either case, it requires the skillful

Local Infections Are A Handicap to Health

The Most Common Sources of Body Poisons Are the Teeth and Tonsils, Says Dr. Copeland, but Science Can Readily Locate the Seat of Trouble

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WITHIN the past decade the term "focal infection" has come into common use. It is a condition of great importance. The acceptance of the idea has altered many of our other theories concerning disease.

These germs, or bacteria, or a collection of them, multiply and produce poisons at some definite location in the body. The poisons, and, in many cases, the germs themselves, enter the blood stream. They are carried to distant parts of the body, where they produce their harmful effects.

Former methods of treatment failed to relieve, because the real seat of the trouble was not known. By means of modern methods, particularly the X-ray and laboratory tests, the difficulty can be located. A patient may complain of pain in the leg, knee or back. Though the painful part may be treated, the actual cause is not removed. The focus of infection, the real foundation of disturbance may be in the teeth, nose, tonsils, appendix, gall bladder, or somewhere else in the body.

When the source of the poison is known, and that point is cleared up, prompt relief usually follows. The teeth are the most common seat of focal infection. This is discovered only by an X-ray examination.

The tonsils are frequently the site of focal infection. In cases where the tonsils are actually diseased their removal must be considered. The sinuses of the nose are frequently involved in chronic infections. Here, too, the X-ray plays an important role. The condition of the sinuses can be determined by transillumination, the light shining through the thin tissues.

When the sinuses are diseased and harbor bacteria and pus, a slight operation may give speedy relief and cause the disappearance of the infection. The neuritis or the pains will be heard of no more after this is done.

It should be remembered that the gall bladder, the appendix or even the intestinal tract may be the seat of focal infection. As a rule the victims show definite digestive disorders. To one skilled in this art the X-ray examination gives definite information.

Any focus of infection in the body is a serious handicap to health. It should be removed. Its removal is important, not only for the cure of the existing disease, but for the prevention of future and perhaps more serious ailments.

Answers to Health Queries
E. T. Z. Q.—I do not have colds but am constantly bothered with phlegm in my throat and mucus in my nose, causing difficult breathing. Are these symptoms catarrhal?

A.—Yes. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

E. L. Q.—Do you advise anyone to drink several raw eggs daily? Will a cup or two of cocoa daily prove harmful in any way?

A.—What is the purpose? Raw eggs are healthful and nutritious—taken with milk they are strengthening and nourishing. No cocoa made with milk is most nutritious.

M. E. T. Q.—What can be done for perspiring feet and what causes them to swell? Would this be caused by a kidney condition?

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. If there is any reason to suspect a kidney condition have an examination so that definite advice and treatment can be given.

D. W. Q.—My thirteen year old daughter, who is 5 feet 3 inches tall, weighs about 150 pounds—is well proportioned and very solid. However, her circulation is very poor. Is she growing too fast—would you advise some glandular medicine to stop her rapid growth?

A.—If she is in good health her circulation will take care of itself. See your doctor for his advice. Copyright 1931 by Newsweek Feature Service Inc.

Sunburns and How They Are Brought About

Sunburns are the result of the action of the rays of the sun, upon the skin. Sun rays are divided into two groups:

1. Those that give us light.
2. Those that give us heat, known as the actinic rays of the sun.

It is these actinic rays of the sun that cause the discoloration of the skin surface of the face, hands and other parts of the body exposed to these actinic rays—the more severe the burn the more painful it is to the touch and to the clothing. Light complexioned people are more susceptible to these actinic rays than darker complexioned people.

To Prevent Sunburn
Apply an ointment consisting of one part of Quinine in fifteen parts of Vaseline, or Cold Cream, well-mixed to every part of the face, neck, back and hands or other to these actinic rays. The best way is to have your local druggist make you up this ointment and better still is to consult with your family physician about a better ointment or lotion, because the chances are that he has something better still. In either event don't expose yourself too long to the actinic rays.

While sunshine is being highly recommended by the profession, as being essential to life and growth of children—in fact the profession uses and recommends artificial sun rays known as Ultraviolet light for youngsters that are undernourished and lack in the necessary elements of growth from a depletion of these rays—nevertheless an excess of these sun rays cause harm and give us the condition known as sunburn.

As a first aid measure when you come home from your delightful picnic and joyful creek swim and your skin is burned, use cold cream and then go over to your family physician and let him give you a prescription that will heal the sunburn immediately without any trouble or complications.

The part of Mme. Vinard is portrayed by Andrienne D'Ambricourt, remembered for her portrayal of Joe, the maid, in First National's "Footlights and Fools," and as Marie Dicot in M. G. M.'s "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

Now Showing At The Cliftona

More and more the motion picture, though still a potent means of entertainment, is coming to a place where it can lay vital issues before the public.

So declares Wallace Beery, who plays the sinister Scorpian in "The Secret Six." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's drama of American life, which is shown at the Cliftona Theatre, "The motion picture can find drama," says Beery, "in the vital issues of today, and thus bring some valuable truths to the public—things the public has a right to know and should know. And this can be done with no sacrifice of entertainment value.

"In 'The Big House' we showed prison conditions and the result of herding youthful prisoners with old offenders. I am very proud that I had a hand in it, since I have seen the widespread editorial comment on it. The same is true of 'The Secret Six.' The picture shows the underlying causes for the situations brought about in large American cities through corrupt politics, gang rule underworld interference with the machinery of the law, and the use of underworld

LIVESTOCK EXHIBITS EXPECTED TO EXCEL AT OHIO STATE FAIR

"The first two weeks of entry recording, indicates that the Ohio State Fair will again lead the exhibitions of all other states in the number and classes of live stock exhibited," announced Charles M. Beer, State Fair Manager today.

As in former years the Ohio Stock show has attracted entries from many states, because of the continued policy of offering large premiums in all classes and the universal recognition by live stock breeders, that a ribbon won at Ohio has a prestige and distinction all its own, many of the best draft horses and herds of beef cattle in the middle west pass up their own state fairs to show at Ohio. This is also true with a number of nationally known saddle and light harness horses and dairy cattle in the East.

While the Ohio State Fair is known internationally for its excellence in every department, and its uniformly high premiums, its greatest fame lies in the different phases of its live stock competition. Other departments such as agriculture and horticulture are, for the most part, strictly Ohioan, since most of the exhibitors come from within the Buckeye State. In the live stock department, however, the large awards here each year attract exhibitors from every corner of the United States and from Canada as well, while buyers and stockmen from other countries make an annual pilgrimage to the Ohio exposition to witness the keen competition and avail themselves of the opportunity to behold the most perfect animals in the world gathered for exhibition.

To review briefly the accomplishments this fair has made in recent years—Ohio has led the exhibitions of America consistently in Percherons, Belgians, Shorthorns, Herefords, and Jerseys; she has ranked second and first respectively in poultry and swine and for ten consecutive years has set a new world's record in the sheep department. In recent years the peak was reached in sheep entries from 2,500 up. New breed records were also set in Shorthorns, Holsteins, Chester Whites, Yorkshires, Class C Merinos, Class B and Class C Ramboulllets, Cotswolds, Hampshire Downs, Southdowns, Shropshires, Lincolns and Dorsets. The judging arenas were crowded with animals of the highest type and the judges were confronted with the problem of placing in relative position thousands of animals so true to type and of such high quality that there was little difference between them.

A special feature of the Sheep Show this year, according to L. E. Palmer, Member in Charge, will be the showing of sheep on Tuesday evening. In addition to the Sheep Show there will be a meat cutting demonstration, wool grading demonstration and style show, picturing different types of garments manufactured from all wool products.

The sheep shearing contest will be held daily in cooperation with the Chicago Flexible Shaft Company which is furnishing the equipment for these contests. Special prizes will be given each day on Friday the final eliminations of those winning the highest scores on each of the previous days will be held. Prizes to the value of $400 will be awarded for this week's contest.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board will cooperate in exhibiting choice cuts of lamb and will sponsor the lamb cutting demonstrations in cooperation with the Department of Animal Industry of the Ohio State University.

L. A. Kauffman will be the Manager of the special auction sale of pure bred sheep which will take place at the Live Stock Judging Arena on Thursday of the Fair. Special rules and regulations have been approved by a Committee composed of one exhibition from each different breed. The great lamb sale at Salt Lake City has proven to be outstanding event for sheep men in the west. We hope that this sale in Ohio will be the start of an equally successful one in the farm flock states.

Special exhibits showing the production and manufacture of woolen cloth as well as the standardization of wool grades will be featured in the exhibition room in the new sheep building.

THOMAS WINS

Thomas denied he had ever accepted Engle's offer to act as his agent and testified he had "sought Engle's confidence" in order to obtain evidence with which he could force the traction commissioner to testify against himself at a grand jury investigation.

All the testimony in the black-mail trial was accepted as evidence in the prosecutor's master hearing. More than 4,400 persons signed the petitions asking Thomas' removal from office. The petitions contained 16 charges of irregularities, all except three of which were dropped by the judges because the alleged violations occurred during one of Thomas' previous terms of office.

Trial of Thomas on eight other counts contained in indictments returned by a special grand jury has been postponed until fall when the visiting judges return from their vacations.

EXPECT CHANGES IN OHIO GOLF UNDER NEW ADMINISTRATION

CLEVELAND, July 24.—Members of the Cleveland District Golf association look to the new administration of the Ohio State Golf association to make changes in policy which they believe are necessary if the organization can continue to exist.

Unless drastic changes are made, the Cleveland golfers, leaders frankly admit, are "about through." This became the attitude of officials of the Cleveland association after the recent state amateur tournament when four Cleveland players were prevented from participating.

Assuming that the 1931 state tournament would be conducted in the same manner as the 1930 meet, Cleveland officials held a test round in the public links division and sent the qualifiers to Columbus as representatives of the Cleveland District Golf association.

Officials declare that after the Clevelanders had played one round in a 36-hole qualifier, they were told they were not eligible because the old plan of qualifying had been abolished.

No announcement of the change in tournament plans had been received here, it was charged.

Clevelanders also expressed dissatisfaction with other tournaments, which caused them a few years ago to urge that the administration of the state golf meets be placed in the hands of the various district associations. Toledo, Cincinnati, Columbus, Akron, Dayton, Cleveland and others.

A protest now being prepared charges that in a tournament held two years ago all public linksmen without warning, were barred from participating in the annual state tournament for the first time in the history of the association. Cries of protest finally resulted in permission being granted to several public links players, and eventually resulted in the adoption of a rule governing public links players, it was said.

The Clevelanders were disqualified despite the action taken at the association's winter meeting when it was voted to allow four public linksmen from Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and Toledo districts to play, it was further charged.

Clevelanders also declared that the O. S. G. A. withdrew from further responsibility for the public links tournament and threw it up.

on the players to conduct for themselves.

Under the leadership of John S. Knight of Akron, the new president, the association will be able to make the desired changes in policy, the Clevelanders believe. Knight, Clevelanders said, is interested in a complete reorganization with the hope of regaining prestige which they believe the state tournament has lost under its recent leadership.

COKE'S LOSE TO RED MEN

Score 16-6; Bottlers and Oils Tangle Tonight in Postponed Contest.

Failure to have their full team on the field aided the Red Men to trounce the Coca Colas by the score of 16-6.

Only a few of the regular members of the team were on hand to play for the Cokes and sideliners had to be drafted by Frank Lynch to make up his lineup.

The Red Men connected for a barrage of hits in almost every inning, piling up the big score.

This victory for the Indians, places them in a three-way tie with the Cokes and Oils for possession of second place. The Grocers lead the league by two games.

In what should prove to be a very interesting contest is scheduled tonight at Utilities park when the Cokes and Oils get together to play a postponed game scheduled from Monday night on account of rain. The victor will become undisputed holder of second place.

Crum pitched for the winners. The recreation ball league standing before tonight's game looks like this:

TEAM Won Lost Pct.

Ind. Grocers 4 3 .400

Coca Colas 2 3 .400

C. Oils 2 3 .400

Red Men 2 3 .400

BILLIE BURKE AND HIS HEAVY ARTILLERY

Every golfer in the country no doubt would like to receive private lessons from Billie Burke, new National Open champion, but, that being practically impossible, here's the next best thing to study. Five grips, stances and swings taken by the Greenwich, Conn., pro in winning the coveted national title, relinquished by Bobby Jones, at Inverness Club course, Toledo, Ohio, are illustrated and explained. Take a long, satisfying look and then try and do likewise. We wish you luck!

CHAMP WHIPS FRED MILLER

Bat Battalino Has Too Many Guns For Cincinnati Featherweight.

Bat Battalino of Hartford, Conn., world's featherweight champion, who is supposed to be a "push-over" today had again proved his right to the crown. He successfully defended his title at Cincinnati last night against Freddie Miller, Cincinnati champion, and gave a worthy exhibition.

Miller was lucky to escape a kayo.

Battalino knocked Miller down twice in the eighth round for counts of nine. The bell saved the challenger and he managed to go the distance. The champion won every round but the third.

The referee and judges gave the champion the unanimous decision. A crowd of 12,000 saw the bout. Battalino weighed 125 and Miller a quarter of a pound less.

a giddy whirl featuring Mickey Walker, Jack Sharkey, Primo Carnera, Tommy Loughran and (who knows) maybe William Lawrence Stribling.

Don't laugh. Believe it or not old John Public is in for a series of those eliminations that never seem to eliminate.

Had Sharkey knocked Walker out, as he should have done if he is the man he claims he is, everybody would have conceded that the garrulous gob deserves the first shot at the title. But Sharkey's discreditable showing has sidetracked him. Everybody knows Schmeling was none too eager to meet Sharkey after the pasting Jack gave him when they met a year ago in New York.

BERLIN.—1930, with its economic year for the registrar's office and the stork in Germany, as official statistics reveal. The number of marriages dropped by 32,000 compared with the preceding year, while 20,630 babies less than in 1929 were born.

'CHAMPIONS' MEET IN GOLF CONTEST

A battle of the ages was staged over the Pickaway Country club golf course Thursday afternoon when four noble exponents of the game tangled.

Frank Bennett, a veteran of at least 21 holes of competition, and C. E. Wilson, tangled with H. O. Jack Pile, playing his first game of golf, and Earl Rader.

The former pair won by one stroke having a grand total of 133 for 18 holes against 132 for the other players.

Speaking of matches, none ever better superintended than this. Will G. Hamilton acted as referee and George Brown as umpire, although yet is not certain just what his duties were to be. According to one member of the foursome the greatest trouble he had was not watching his opponent but watching his opponent's caddy in an effort to keep him from "hunching" occasionally.

Score of the players were: Rader 48, Pile 86, Bennett 84 and Wilson 49.

After the game players and officials enjoyed a dinner at the club house.
